ANAHEIM -- NAFEM recognized Paul K. Angrick, CFSP, executive vice president, Business Development, Middleby Corporation, Elgin, Ill., with its 2015 President's Award.

The award, presented during The NAFEM Show, February 18, Anaheim Convention Center, Anaheim, California, recognizes a non-elected NAFEM volunteer who has donated their time and expertise for the betterment of the association.

A 30+-year industry veteran, Angrick has held a wide variety of roles with NAFEM, including committee member, committee chair and board member. In 2006, he joined the officer ranks, serving as secretary-treasurer and president-elect before being named president in 2008.

In presenting the award, Michael Whiteley, CFSP, NAFEM president and vice president of sales & marketing, Hatco Corporation, Milwaukee, Wis., remarked that "even though the heavy-lifting stage of Paul Angrick's NAFEM career is over, he's been instrumental in mentoring many past and current board members, myself included, demonstrating his unparalleled interest in continuing to move the association ever-forward. It's a testimonial to his own learning journey and to his leadership."
